

A place I visited

On 15 January 2019, I paid a visit to Sonargaon. I went there with some of my friends and two of my teachers. We know mere bookish knowledge is not sufficient for us. Travelling is a great media to enrich our knowledge. It helps us increase the storehouse of our Knowledge. Visiting a place is truly interesting and exciting. Visits to such places bear a great value too. Besides it helps us remove the dullness of mind which occurs from the monotonous classes. So we decided to pay a visit to

Sonargaon is a famous place for its historical importance. It is now located in the district of Narayanganj, not far from Dhaka city. It was once the capital of Bangladesh for a long time. It was ruled by the Muslim rulers. So, it has a glorious past with many relics of the then sultans. The certain relics and remnants are still worth seeing and enjoying. I like this place very much. Because the sights and scenery are very charming

We watched the palace of the then emperor. There is a museum in Sonargaon. We also went to the museum and saw different things which were used by the Muslim rulers. They reminded us of the then rulers as well as supplemented our knowledge of its history. We all enjoyed the sights and scenes. I will never forget this visit. It's a wonderful experience that I have ever achieved. It was indeed, a rewarding visit. It is still crystal clear in my memory.
